

CLASSIC STOVE WORKS Surdiac Le Marquis

Manufacturer's Comment

Classic Stove Works brings to the American marketplace a firebrick stove, both elegant and efficient. The Surdiac Le Marquis, a woodburning fireplace stove, joins Classic's line of Surdiac coalburning stoves imported from Belgium.

More than 100 years of quality craftsmanship have been enhanced by modern technology to produce outstanding coalburning stoves that carry the Surdiac name. Now, that same craftsmanship wedded to modern design and engineering has produced Surdiac Le Marquis, a welcome entry into the world of woodburning.

Le Marquis delivers 30% more radiated heat than conventional woodburning stoves. Its large glass doors not only radiate heat but offer owners a clear view of their beautiful fire from all parts of the room. And loading wood through the wide doors is easy.

Only 187 pounds, this compact heat producer has a capacity of 14,800 to 17,400 cubic feet and a range from 51,200 to 60,000 BTU's per hour. Its sturdy cast iron combustion chamber features a firebox which easily holds logs up to two feet long. Surdiac Le Marquis warms the crevices of five room ranches to 12 room colonials.

Consider the prospect: a crackling fire that's an efficient energy source having a night burning capacity of 10 hours!

Le Marquis is easy to install and maintain. A flue outlet with outside dimensions of only 6 inches and a reversible flue outlet back or top make bringing Le Marquis into the home an attractive alternative. A removable ash tray puts cleanup at the flick of a wrist.

In colors of soft silver grey or warm bronze, Surdiac Le Marquis with its decorative side panels and improved radiant heat is a pretty smart investment.
